

Several people have suggested the Talking Heads' Nothing But Flowers. The question is whether Byrne is being ironic, or whether it really is an attack on environmental over-the-top-ism. One could actually argue that it's an anti-environmental song, but given Legal Planet's strong commitment to being Fair and Balanced, we wanted to include it. We post, you decide:

More traditionally, but no less ironically, here's Randy Newman's great ode to Cleveland, Burn On. A celebration of the burning of the Cuyahoga River: