

Yesterday, I posted a link to websites that are providing good information about the spill. Those sites provide rich sources of information, but they won't necessarily tell you what's happened in the last half hour. Talking Points Memo has a really helpful "news wire" if you want the very latest news. TPM is a "progressive" website, but so far as I can tell there's no political spin to the news links that they post here.