Pollution in China has been much in the news recently, from premature deaths caused by air pollution to news of thousands of dead pigs found in a Shanghai river.

Could law help solve China's environmental problems? My recent post on China Dialogue takes a look at what China's new environmental courts have been able to accomplish so far.