It was a rough year in 2015 for SB 32 (Pavley), California's major climate bill to extend our greenhouse gas reduction efforts to 2030. The bill went down without a vote on the Assembly floor, due to opposition from "moderate" Democrats.

But today, the Assembly passed the bill with 42 votes in favor, 29 opposed:

*ACHADJIAN	▲ COOLEY	WHARPER	▼ OBERNOLTE
ALEIO	COOPER	HERNANDEZ	O'DONNELL
VALLEN	▲ DABABNEH	A HOLDEN	VOLSEN
ARAMBULA	* DAHLE	AIRWIN	* PATTERSON
ATKINS	DALY	TIONES	A QUIRK
BAKER	▲ DODD	A JONES-SAWYER	A RIDLEY-THOMAS
BIGELOW	EGGMAN	*KIM	▲ RODRIGUEZ
* BLOOM	* FRAZIER	*LACKEY	YSALAS
BONILLA	V GAINES	ALEVINE	▲ SANTIAGO
BONTA	*GALLAGHER	VLINDER	*STEINORTH
* BROUGH	A GARCIA, C.	▲ LOPEZ	▲ STONE
BROWN	A GARCIA, E.	ALOW	A THURMOND
BURKE	▲ GATTO	*MAIENSCHEIN	▲ TING
- CALDERON	A GIPSON	*MATHIS	*WAGNER
CAMPOS	▲ GOMEZ	*MAYES	*WALDRON
*CHANG	▲ GONZALEZ	▲ MCCARTY	▲ WEBER
L CHAU	▲ GORDON	- MEDINA	*WILK
CHAVEZ	V GRAY	*MELENDEZ	▲ WILLIAMS
CHIU	▼ GROVE	AMULLIN	▲ WOOD
▲ CHU	WHADLEY	NAZARIAN	AMR. SPEAKER
		hird Reading
	SB 3	2 Pavley
FILE:203	A Committee of the last of the
	- NO 20
▲ AYE 42	V NO 29	VOTE: Majority

This majority vote won't inoculate certain programs under AB 32, like cap-and-trade, from court challenges alleging that they constitute a tax requiring a super-majority vote. But the bill gives the California Air Resources Board authority to implement command-and-control regulations, if market-based alternatives are challenged.

With the state senate already passing SB 32, the governor will sign soon, and California's position as an international leader in reducing greenhouse gas emissions will continue.

UPDATE: As David Holtzman noted in the comments, $\underline{SB\ 32}$ is tied to the passage of $\underline{AB\ 197}$, which is still up for a vote.